

School of Public Policy

EVGENIIA (JEN) SIDORVA

Executive Fellow
Canadian Governance Policy

Evgeniia (Jen) Sidorova is an Indigenous researcher and a consultant. She identifies as Sakha from Yakutsk, Sakha Republic (Russia), where her people are traditionally cattle and horse breeders. She is currently based in Moh'kinstsis (Calgary, Alberta) in Treaty 7 Territory.

Jen holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Calgary, where she studied the incorporation of Indigenous Knowledge into Arctic politics, as well as a Master of Arts from the University of Alaska Fairbanks, focused on comparative resource extractive regimes in the Arctic region. She has worked with Pauktuutit Inuit Women of Canada as a Policy and Research Analyst and has consulted for organizations including Indspire and the Vancouver Island Human Rights Coalition. Jen also served as a Postdoctoral Scholar with the Canadian Northern Corridor Research Program at the University of Calgary's School of Public Policy.