

Robert Falconer

Research Fellow at the University of Calgary School of Public Policy, Social Policy and Health Research Area

Robert Falconer is a SSHRC Doctoral Fellow at the London School of Economics and researcher with the University of Calgary School of Public Policy. He specializes in quantitative research on migration and public policy.

Robert holds a Master of Public Policy from the University of Calgary, where he completed a capstone research project surveying the refugee housing affordability in Calgary, and offering recommendations to improve affordability. He also holds a Bachelor of Arts (Honours) from the University of Toronto in Anthropology. Robert was previously a frontline worker at Calgary Catholic Immigration Society, a non-profit focused on the settlement and integration of refugees and immigrants in Calgary.

Outside of his professional life, Robert holds various volunteer positions. He enjoys camping, cooking, fishing and reading, but not all at once. He has a wonderful wife Julie and newborn Endel.

Proud son of two Canadian parents, one born here, the other a refugee from Chile.
