

Canada's Productivity Initiative

Investment, Economic Growth &
Long-Term Prosperity

School of Public Policy

Theo Argitis

Senior Vice President, Policy, Business Council of Canada

As Senior Vice President, Policy, Theo leads the Council's policy team and provides analysis and insights on a wide range of issues related to the economy and public policy.

Theo has studied and written on global economic and political affairs for three decades. His journalism career began in the mid-1990s, where he reported on the developing economies of Eastern Europe as managing editor of current affairs weekly New Europe. He joined Bloomberg in 1999 to open a bureau in Athens, before moving to Ottawa six years later. Since 2005, Theo has written on just about every major story at the nexus of power and money in Canada.

Born in Athens and raised in Montreal, Theo graduated from McGill University in 1989 and holds a Masters degree in economics from the University of Toronto.