Tyler McCann

Managing Director, Canadian Agri-Food Policy
Institute

Tyler McCann is the Managing Director of the Canadian Agri-Food Policy Institute (CAPI). He has extensive experience in agri-food policy, having worked for the federal ministers, farm groups, industry associations, and agri-food businesses. McCann's career includes advising on government relations, policy, and association management. He operates a beef and goat farm with his wife and children in Western Quebec. McCann's work at CAPI focuses on leading policy development, collaborating with partners, and advancing policy solutions within agriculture and food.
